In Conclusion

We offer the above comments with humility and humbleness as part of a discussion on Midnight Notes. We also offer our sincerest congratulations. Few groups on the radical Left in the United States can sustain thirty years of collective effort at intervention, or anything else for that matter. More important, however, few groups in the United States have been able to consistently offer substantially useful insights over three decades of time. Cheers to three decades on, and thirty years hence, unless we, hopefully, win first.
